SECTION B (70 Marks)

Answer all questions in this section.

3. Read the following passage carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

The term state is often confused with other related concepts like country, nation and government. It is important to distinguish the concept of the state from other concepts. The term country is used to describe a geographical space or territory bounded by internationally recognized boundaries. A country is not the same as state that means being an organized political community under one government. It is possible to have more than one state in a country. For example, India is a single country with 25 states.

People inhabiting a particular country may constitute one or more nations. A nation is a community of people who constitute historically shared territory, culture, language and economy. However, there are countries consisting of many nations. The term government on the other hand, refers to the executive arm of the state responsible for controlling the state or the state ruling machinery. However, the state is more than the executive because governments change through elections or other means to suit the prevailing conditions but, a state remains the same. Above all, as a means of rule over a sovereign territory, a state exercise permanent power within a specified territory, levies taxes and operates a military and police force.
